OUR COVER THIS MONTH

With the beginning of November impending winter signalizes its approach. The sedge-meadows have transformed their colors from pale green to yellow. The background of the marshes is ablaze with color – the gold and orange of the sugar maples, the scarlet of swamp maples, the yellow of the birches and aspens – all interwoven with the green of spruce and pines. The ducks have courted, paired and reared their young – they are restless. And so, too, is man – the hunter.

FOUND IN THE MAIL BOX

Editor Sir:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you very much for the assistance and advice you gave me in planning and executing the publicity for the Railroad Enthusiasts' Fitchburg Fall Foliage Flyer, which ran Saturday, October 24. Especially appreciated was your article in the October TRAVEL GUIDE and MENU.

Our train had four Budd cars (the largest Budd train we have ever had), which were filled with 242 happy and enthusiastic railroad and foliage lovers.

Everybody on the trip was seriously concerned with the New Haven Railroad's present difficulties. Although our part in aiding the railroad, both financially and with good will, is only a relatively small part of the total needed, we are enthusiastic and hope the word will spread.

As a result of my conferences with you, I have learned a number of things about publicity which I will certainly make use of in preparing for future trips. I, as well as the entire membership of the Railroad Enthusiasts, Inc., hope that the New Haven Railroad will be included in these plans again in the near future. We hope our future trips will be even bigger and better.

NHRR Family Joins Tessie In United Fund

It's time to share. It's time for people to help people. It's time for the United Fund Drive . . . the one for all drive. And this year in Boston Tessie will lead the way. (See Tessie on page 9)

Young oldtimers remember Tessie in song and in legend as the lady who was the symbol of success in the Boston Red Sox drives to pennants and World Series triumphs fifty years ago.

Today she leads the musical way as the workers and the contributors set out to help people help people . . . to give new hope to a lonely old lady . . . to bring blood to save a life . . . to help put the Red Cross on the scene when disaster strikes . . . to keep a hospital open 24 hours a day . . . to provide guidance for a troubled mind . . . to help carry on basic medical research in our fine local laboratories.

These goals are closer because of the generosity of people. And New Haven Railroad employees, too, are aiming for these needed goals in their current payroll deduction contributions. Won't you help?

RAILROADS TAME TIME

On November 18, 1883, at precisely high noon, all railroad clocks in the United States were set to a newly established Standard Time. This historic step was taken by a group of railroad officers at the General Time Convention in Chicago. They soon realized that efficient transportation is precision transportation. It is this precision of operation that aids in making possible the dependable, low-cost railroad service upon which a dynamic American economy depends.

Women...!!

By NANCY NEWTON

The party season is on — yes, with the approach of Thanksgiving, and Christmas just around the corner, a season of gaiety prevails. With this thought in mind it might be well to prepare now if you plan to do any entertaining during the holidays. During the months of September and October you have dutifully undergone the task of Fall housecleaning — all summer's of summer have been carefully packed away. Filled with new ideas on home decorating the thought also comes to mind of new ideas in the cooking department.

For you girls who have been cooking for several years and consider it a chore rather than a joy — try something new and different — nothing complicated, but a dish that is quick and easy to prepare, yet is attractive and taste-tempting. Explore a whole new avenue of recipes.

Start with salads by tossing out the idea of the conventional tossed salad — experiment with individual molds of shimmering peach flavor gelatin, bright with mandarin oranges and avocado slices. This gelatin salad is the perfect accompaniment for the holiday dinner or as a dressed-up salad garnish for slices of leftover bird and other cold meats.

What to do with fish? The intriguing aspect of these ocean, river and lake foods is that there is such great variety; they come fresh, canned or in frozen form. Oysters, combined with mushrooms and parmesan cheese, in a supper dish for the family, can be doubled when guests arrive for dinner. A quick and appetizing dish calls for frozen fish sticks crowned with a deviled spray topping baked on the crispy pieces of fish.

You'll appreciate cranberries too, especially when you use them as the filling for sweet yeast-raised rolls. Their bright color and exceptional flavor give home made breads and cookies a true holiday air.

Appetizers have made their way into homes all over the world — they are now served, not only at parties but at simple family dinners as well — the French call them hors d'oeuvre, the Russian zakouski, and the Swedish have their smorgasbord. Whatever they are called, appetizers offer a pleasant introduction to a meal, and they are thoroughly welcome at an accompaniment to cocktails. For that extra special occasion try an exciting appetizer of hot shrimp served on toast points with a champagne sauce. After a treat such as this your guests will gladly settle for frankfurts and beans for the main course!

Put a little fun in your life, girls — try cooking — a new way — you'll revel in compliments.

Recipe of the Month

HOT WATER GINGER BREAD

Add ½ cup water to one cup molasses; mix and sift 2½ cups pastry flour, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½teaspoon salt; add liquids and ½ cup melted shortening. Beat vigorously. Pour into small greased baking pan and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in 2 inch squares and serve hot; serve with whipped cream sweetened slightly and flavored. Eight portions.

New Haven Railroader Owns His Branch Line

"What does a railroad man do after working all day on the railroad?" asked Jane Holtz of the Quincy Patriot Ledger.

Well, if he's James F. Scagel Higgins, he builds more railroads in the cellar of his home at 45 Howe Street, Germantown, a suburb of Quincy.

Sitting sidesaddle on the tender of his model engine, the New Haven railroader might be describing the 1937 engine that really did pull the trains of that period.

He points to the throttle, moves the Johnson bar back and forth, runs his fingers along the steel wheels—all miniature parts of a 27-inch high engine.

Then, dismounting, he kneels to explain the long construction process: carving a wooden pattern, ordering cast steel parts, machining, fitting, welding.

"It's easy to stand here and talk about it," he says, "but there's more to this thing than you realize."

"I could rip all this thing out and show you 500 parts — pistons, valves, every thing — all very complicated.

"I've been working on this for 20 years."

Twenty years! That's almost as long as he's been working for the New Haven.

Right after the depression, Mr. Higgins began to assemble his 23 foot long engine, building most of it in the last three years.

Home from the 3 to midnight shift as a railroad ticket collector for the New Haven, he spent the hours to 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning alone in his cellar with the project.

Reluctant witnesses to this long period of noise and clutter were Mr. Higgins' family — his wife, Ruth, and two sons, John and James.

But the engine, a caboose and two passenger cars finally did emerge.

Early last spring they shuttled back

Shippers Say

(We of the New Haven Railroad continue a series wherein our Shippers tell their own story. This month we introduce the NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY of New York City.)

In 1898 NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY was formed. However, its roots are deeper than that and of particular interest to New Englanders.

The cracker business got its start in 1792 when Theodore Pearson first made "Pilot Crackers" or "Ship's Bread" in Newburyport, Mass. In 1801 Josiah Bent opened a bakery in Milton, Mass. to produce his famous "Water Crackers." Artemus Kennedy followed suit in 1805 in what is now Arlington, Mass. Surely, you remember "Kennedy's Special Common," which are still distributed in New England.

By the end of the Civil War in 1865, cracker bakeries were scattered throughout the United States, essentially serving the area in and around the towns in which they were located. As the population grew, so did the demand; and it became increasingly difficult to guarantee the crackers would be fresh when they reached the customer.

In 1890 there were many mergers into sectional groups - such as the New York Biscuit Company, the American Biscuit & Manufacturing Company, the United States Baking Company, and the National Baking Company. Eight years later, these four companies, along with a number of smaller bakeries, were joined together to form NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY. As of that date, February 3, 1898, Nabisco became the largest cracker manufacturer in the country, and has held that position ever since.

The new company concentrated on quality, freshness, cleanliness, laboratory control and built up a nation-wide sales and distribution force.

In a little more than a year came the introduction of the famous UNEEDA BISCUIT which was the first packaged cracker. Into the discard went bulk containers and paper bags. The food industry was revolutionized and attractively packaged "brand name" products were advertised country-wide.

Nabisco has several modern bakeries, strategically located; and many specialty plants for the production of bread, rolls and cakes; cereals, ice cream cones, Holland Rusk, pretzels and Milk-Bone brand dog foods. In addition, it produces Domestic brand cake mixes, dates, pimentos, nut rolls, fruits and peels.

Three company-owned flour mills furnish about 40% of the flour used. Nabisco also maintains two printing and carton plants, a completely equipped machine shop, a molasses blending plant and a large modern research center in Fair Lawn, New Jersey.

In New England alone are located 23 selling-distributing branches each of which operates a fleet of delivery trucks, insuring prompt, frequent deliveries of some 175 varieties of cookies and crackers. A complex distribution system is needed to reach every corner store and the railroads play an important part in this system with their covered hopper cars, specially equipped box cars and, more recently, their piggy-back operation.

The gleaming modern bakeries of today are indeed impressive to see. Ingredients arrive in bulk and are moved through pneumatic tubes to huge storage bins or tanks; electronic panel boards control the mixing operations and band ovens as long as a football field turn out crackers and cookies. Each oven is capable of producing over 5,000,000 crackers in an eight hour day.

Nabisco also has operations in Canada, England, Venezuela, Mexico, Italy, Australia, France, and Puerto Rico.

The Company's methods of operation, experience, traditions and stability make it a good place to work. Nearly 28,000 people are employed and one out of every five has been with Nabisco for more than 20 years. In addition, over 50% of our executives has come up from the ranks.

The public has confidence in the company as well since 76,000 shareholders from every walk of life invest their money in shares of Nabisco stock. Their confidence is well backed since Nabisco has paid a dividend from the year of its formation. With this kind of reputation Nabisco looks to the future of continued success and achievement.

"GANSETT SPECIAL . . . nine romp under the wire in the daily stretch drive of kings . . . and queens . . . this month at the famed oval in Rhode Island.

Sports On Our Line

Twenty eight racing seasons ago a new group of sportsmen opened up a horse racing track in an area which formerly housed a flying school called What Cheer down in Pawtucket. The only member of that courageous group on hand to welcome racing fans today is the jovial Billy Ames, now as then publicity director. Agelos Williams, once boxing promoter, with a bit of English sporting blood in his veins, received our good wishes for twenty eight more years of racing seasons ahead at his oval, in return for which he remarked on the success of the Gansett Special.

The Gansett Special isn't a horse or a race. It is the long train which daily runs to trackside in the usual time of 55 minutes with upwards of ten spectators, most of whom board at Boston and return to the Dance's terminal following Billy's excellent racing card.

Veteran promoter Ames says . . . "Important stakes have been scheduled for this meeting Conferway to December 31 and in addition the schedule is liberally sprinkled with overnight handicaps, thereby giving promise to a session of the first class sport to which Narragansett patrons have been accustomed."

True Thanksgiving

The spirit of Thanksgiving is enshrined in the prayers of the faiths:

Protestant: "Bless, O Lord, this food to our use, and us to Thy service, and make us ever mindful of the needs of others, in Jesus' Name. Amen."

Jewish: "Lift up your hands toward the sanctuary and bless the Lord. Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who bringest forth bread from the earth. Amen."

Catholic: "Bless us, O Lord, and these Thy gifts, which we are about to receive from Thy bounty, through Christ our Lord. Amen."

RAILROADIANA ON DAY OFF

and forth in the sunlight on a straight track on the side lawn.

"And the kids went crazy."

Neighborhood youngsters "scooter junied" by their elders gathered to watch or ride the streaming train.

"But there really was no room to run it."

The long engine and trains needed a bigger yard: a 90-foot radius with a figure eight track. Such a yard could not be found.

So Mr. Higgins dismounted the trains and stowed them in his garage.

A mile of aluminum track, still sharp and shiny, were stored there on top of the rafters, with other equipment beneath white cloths.

In the last 30 years, this longtime Quincy railroader has seen his paper plans become a moving model.

Perhaps in the next few years, he may see his dream of young passengers riding this moving model become a commercial success.

But most of all, Mr. Higgins waits and looks for a wider yard where he can turn his railroad hobby into a business.

The ancient Greeks invented the keyhole. They were the first to put a sliding wooden bolt on the inside of a door. A sickle-shaped key was fashioned to insert through the hole, to engage the bolt and withdraw it.
